== Nature of running == Kelly played as a right-back or a right midfielder from 1992 until 2007 and made 531 appearances in total for Leeds United, being the only player to make more than 500 appearances outside the stewardship of Don Revie. Kelly made his debut for Leeds in the 1991–92 season, although he did not become a regular in the side until the 1993–94 season, when Wilkinson made him his first choice right-back following the injury-induced retirement of Mel Sterland, occasionally filing in at centre back when needed. Running can be described as: Running - means of rapidly traveling on foot, in which at regular points during the running cycle both feet are off the ground. Running is a key component to a number of sporting events typically in the realm of road racing, track and field or triathlon. Primitive forerunners of the archetype can be found dating back as far as a thousand years. The first Scottish effort, also referred to as a buskin, made use of a boot-shaped rawhide garment that was soaked with water, drawn over the foot and lower leg, and then... == Spanish boot ==

Peroneal nerve paralysis It is also known as Zenker's paralysis, named after Friedrich Albert von Zenker. Peroneal nerve is most commonly interrupted at the knee and possibly at the joint of hip and ankle. Peroneal nerve paralysis usually leads to neuromuscular disorder, peroneal nerve injury, or foot drop which can be symptoms of more serious disorders such as nerve compression. Also it has been reported to be mass lesions and metabolic syndromes. Most studies reported that about 30% of peroneal nerve palsy is followed from knee dislocations. Orthopedic devices may include braces, splints, orthopedic shoes, or other equipment. The origin of peroneal nerve palsy has been reported to be associated with musculoskeletal injury or isolated nerve traction and compression. walk and prevent contractures. Slide (footwear) Like flip-flops, they are typically employed in casual situations, in addition to being unisex footwear worn by both sexes. Slides typically aren't designed Slides or sliders are a type of light shoe that is characterized by having a loose heel that holds on to the foot from the front. collapsing over time. Sliders are distinguished from flip-flops by their vamp strap which does not separate the big toe from the rest of the toes. This pulls the Achilles tendon, potentially causing shin splints, heel and/or arch pain, or tendinitis

Slides can be high-heeled, flat-heeled or somewhere in between, and may cover nearly the entire foot from ankle to toe, or may have only one or two narrow straps. They usually include a single strap or a sequence of straps across the toes and the lower half of the foot to hold the shoe on the foot. The term is descriptive in that this shoe is easy to 'slide' on and off the foot when the wearer wants to do so. Slides do not have a Y-shaped strap, like the flip-flop. They generally consist of a sole and a simple upper strap, the latter having the purpose of keeping them attached to the foot. Their uppers can be smooth and continuous or have fasteners, such as buckles or Velcro. Unlike slippers and mules, which are closed at the front, slide shoes are never closed at the front, they leave the toes...
