HPV vaccine "Adverse events following HPV vaccination: 11 years of surveillance in Australia" Human papillomavirus (HPV) vaccines are vaccines intended to provide acquired immunity against infection by certain types of human papillomavirus. They also protect against penile cancer. Hickie M, Totterdell J, Brotherton J, Dey A, Hill R, et al. All have excellent safety profiles and are highly efficacious, or have met immunobridging standards. They additionally prevent genital warts (also known as anogenital warts), with the quadrivalent and nonavalent vaccines providing virtually complete protection. (August 2020). Currently there are six licensed HPV vaccines: three bivalent (protect against two types of HPV), two quadrivalent (against four), and one nonavalent vaccine (against nine). The nonavalent one provides additional protection against HPV types 31, 33, 45, 52 and 58. It is estimated that HPV vaccines may prevent 70% of cervical cancer, 80% of anal cancer, 60% of vaginal cancer, 40% of vulvar cancer, and show more than 90% effectiveness in preventing HPV-positive oropharyngeal cancers. The quadrivalent vaccines provide additional protection against HPV types 6 and 11. All of them protect against HPV types 16 and 18, which are together responsible for approximately 70% of cervical cancer cases globally. The first HPV vaccine became available in 2006 131c70d242
