The concept has been made into a series four separate times since its debut in 1978, and it also appeared as part of CBS's Gameshow Marathon. The show originally ran on NBC from 1978 to 1981 with Jim Perry hosting. The show returned and ran from 1986 to 1989 on CBS with Bob Eubanks as host, accompanied by a syndication production with Bill Rafferty. Gene Wood was the announcer in both the 1970s and 1980s. Another syndicated production aired in 2001 with Pat Bullard as host and Gary Kroeger as announcer. A revival hosted by Joel McHale aired on ABC from June 2019 to July 2021. Each production has featured various assistants to handle the playing cards. Shark fin soup substitutes have lately appeared on the market which do not require any shark fins. == Terminology ==

Shark culling Shark culling is the deliberate killing of sharks by government authorities, usually in response to one or more shark attacks. Shark culling has been criticized by environmentalists, conservationists and animal welfare advocates—they say killing sharks harms the marine ecosystem and is unethical. The term "shark control" is often used by governments when referring to culls. The impact of culling is also minor compared to bycatch with 50 million sharks caught each year by the commercial fishing industry. The term "shark control" Shark culling is the deliberate killing of sharks by government authorities, usually in response to one or more shark attacks. Government officials often cite public safety (attempting to reduce the risk of shark attacks) as a reason for culling

Shark The earliest confirmed modern sharks (Selachii) are known from the Early Jurassic around 200 million years ago, with the oldest known member being Agaleus, though records of true sharks may extend back as far as the Permian. Some sources extend the term "shark" as an informal category including extinct members of Chondrichthyes (cartilaginous fish) with a shark-like morphology, such as hybodonts. Sharks largely replaced the hybodonts, which had previously been a dominant group of shark-like fish. Sharks are a group of elasmobranch cartilaginous fishes characterized by a ribless endoskeleton, dermal denticles, five to seven gill slits on each side, and pectoral fins that are not fused to the head. Shark-like chondrichthyans such as Cladoselache and Doliodus first appeared in the Devonian Period (419–359 million years), though some fossilized chondrichthyan-like scales are as old as the Late Ordovician (458–444 million years ago). Modern sharks are classified within the division Selachii and are the sister group to the Batomorphi (rays and skates). Jurassic true sharks underwent great diversification

It has been condemned by the Humane Society International, which states that approximately 72 million sharks are killed each year for their fins. Currently, international concerns over the sustainability and welfare of sharks have impacted consumption and availability of the soup worldwide. Recently, health concerns about the high concentration of BMAA in shark fins have arisen.

Shark attack Out of more than 500 shark species, only three are responsible for a double-digit number of fatal, unprovoked attacks on humans: the great white, tiger, and bull. Every year, around 80 unprovoked attacks are reported worldwide. A 2013 review A shark attack is an incident in which a shark bites or otherwise injures a human. Humans are not part of a shark's normal diet. Sharks usually feed on small fish and invertebrates, seals, sea lions, and other marine mammals. A shark attack will usually occur if the shark feels curious or confused. Despite their rarity, many people fear shark attacks after occasional serial attacks, such as the Jersey Shore shark attacks of 1916, and horror fiction and films such as the Jaws series. that this is based largely on the assumption that large predatory sharks (such as great white, bull, and tiger sharks) seek humans as prey

Shark nets do not create an exclusion zone between sharks and humans, and are not to be confused with shark barriers. Shark nets do not completely prevent shark attacks in the enclosed area, but work on the principle of "fewer sharks, fewer attacks". Specifically, they aim to reduce occurrence of attacks by entangling and via shark mortality. Shark nets such as those in New South Wales are designed to entangle and capture sharks that pass near them. Reducing the local shark populations reduces the chance of an attack. == Plot == In 1996, the show was retitled Dino Vengers Featuring Street Sharks with the addition of an extraterrestrial team of Dinosaurs named the Dino Vengers who were paired with the Street Sharks. The show also moved to ABC. The Dino Vengers would later receive their own short-lived spin-off, where they were renamed as the Extreme Dinosaurs. Historical shark attack figures suggest that the use of shark nets and drumlines does markedly reduce the incidence of shark attack when implemented on a regular and consistent basis. However a 2019 study argued this conclusion overlooks key factors. The large mesh size of the nets is designed specifically to capture sharks and prevent their escape until eventually, they... The team is the fourth most successful provincial union in the Currie Cup, having won the competition... While the term "shark attack" is in common use for instances of humans being wounded by sharks, it has been suggested that this is based largely on the assumption that large predatory sharks (such as great white, bull, and tiger sharks) seek humans as prey. A 2013 review recommends that only in instances where a shark clearly predate on a human should the bite incident be termed an "attack," implying predation. Otherwise, it is more accurate to class bite incidents... f7e9e0b2ea == Preparation == f7e9e0b2ea The team previously also competed as Natal, the Natal Sharks, and most recently the Sharks XV.
