Slime is customarily made of water, PVA-based glue, and borax. Its recipe can vary based on the desired color, consistency, or scent of the slime; additions can include dyes or sequins. Other recipes for slime include shampoo, soap, corn starch, body lotion, and shaving cream. Variations of slime include glow-in-the-dark, fluffy, glitter, clear, cloud, and metallic. In the United Kingdom, where, as of 2018, borax has been banned for its toxicity and potential to affect fertility, baking soda is a popular substitute. A 2018 survey by British consumer association Which?, however, found that eight of the 11 slime products they tested contained more than the European Union's legal limit of 300mg/kg of boron. bdce0bae67
