Though women had formed Bible study groups since the 17th century, it was not until the late 18th century that secular reading circles emerged in both America and Europe. Reading circles for women were not limited to particular races or classes, with one of the first reading groups for black women being formed in Lynn, Massachusetts, in 1827. Throughout the 19th century, women's reading circles expanded, with some becoming outspoken on social issues such as abolition—foreshadowing the club movement of the end of that century... 8dfd7e8b7a
