Guide to deletion d40683fed5 WP:TOOSOON article about a film that only just commenced photography a matter of days ago, and is not yet close to commercial release. I initially redirected this to the television series, only to have the creator revert me on the grounds of WP:NFF -- but NFF does not hand every forthcoming film an automatic inclusion freebie just because it's started shooting, because even films that have started shooting can still fall apart and never actually get released at all. NFF admittedly isn't crystal clear about how notability really works for films -- I'll grant that it can be interpreted the way the creator wants it to be, if you cherry-pick NFF while ignoring the rest of NFILM, but that's actually incorrect. The actual notability test for unreleased films is as follows: even once principal photography has commenced, a film is still not notable yet unless it generates a massively outsized volume of production coverage on the order of the Star Wars franchise. Most films do not receive that depth of production coverage, however, and can be referenced only to a very small handful of sources, just as this one is -- so most films are not considered notable enough for standalone articles until they have been released. Further, two of the four sources here are Uproxx and a non-notable film blog, which are unreliable sources that cannot help to establish a film's notability at all — which means that what's left is not enough coverage to get this into the "ubernotable like Star Wars" class of films instead of the "wait until a release date is confirmed" class. So no prejudice against recreation once a release date (and an actual title) have actually been announced, but making a film notable enough for a standalone article while it's still in the production pipeline requires a lot more than just one source confirming that the film has started shooting.

Disgust contamination fear related obsessive-compulsive disorder (also known as OCD). Research has continually proven a relationship between disgust and anxiety disorders such as arachnophobia, blood-injection-injury type phobias, and contamination fear related obsessive-compulsive disorder (also known as OCD). Disgust is one of the basic emotions of Robert Plutchik's theory of emotions Disgust (Middle French: desgouster, from Latin gustus, 'taste') is an emotional response of rejection or revulsion to something potentially contagious or something considered offensive, distasteful or unpleasant. Disgust is experienced primarily in relation to the sense of taste (either perceived or imagined), and secondarily to anything which causes a similar feeling by sense of smell, touch, or vision. Musically sensitive people may even be disgusted by the cacophony of inharmonious sounds. In The Expression of the Emotions in Man and Animals, Charles Darwin wrote that disgust is a sensation that refers to something revolting
