Bipolar II tends to be chronic and can significantly impact a person's social, professional, and emotional life. Normal pressure hydrocephalus The fluid build-up causes the ventricles to enlarge and the pressure inside the head to increase, compressing surrounding brain tissue and leading to neurological complications. 9 (4): Normal pressure hydrocephalus (NPH), also called malresorptive hydrocephalus, is a form of communicating hydrocephalus in which excess cerebrospinal fluid (CSF) builds up in the ventricles, leading to normal or slightly elevated cerebrospinal fluid pressure. "Neuroimaging in normal pressure hydrocephalus". The disease presents in a classic triad of symptoms, which are memory impairment, urinary frequency, and balance problems/gait deviations (note: use of this triad as the diagnostic method is obsolete; the triad symptoms appear at a relatively late stage, and each of the three can be caused by a number of other conditions). PMID 33455998. Dementia & Neuropsychologia. PMC 7905302. Damasceno BP (2015). The disease was first described by Salomón Hakim and Raymond Adams in 1965. ISSN 1349-8029. Although the cause of idiopathic (also referred to as primary) NPH remains unclear, it has been associated with various co-morbidities including hypertension, diabetes mellitus, Alzheimer's disease, and hyperlipidemia. Causes of secondary NPH include trauma, hemorrhage, or infection. 2020-0292 cead9dbb29
