Assam is endowed with rich natural resources, and once had a higher than average per capita income than the national average. However, the state subsequently registered a lower than average per capita income and economic growth. In 1950-51, the per capita income was 4 percent above the national average, but in 1998-99, per capita income had dropped 41 percent below the national average at current prices and 45 percent below the national average in constant 1980-81 prices. This decrease could be attributed to a number of reasons, including the 1962 Sino-Indian War and the 1971 Indo-Pakistani War, both fought primarily in the eastern front of India. Assam also had to take in a large number of refugees
