Genome Project 9634f38d93 Cements used in construction are usually inorganic, often lime- or calcium silicate-based, and are either hydraulic or less commonly non-hydraulic, depending on the ability of the cement to set in the presence of water (see hydraulic and non-hydraulic lime plaster). Hydraulic cements such as Portland cement set and become adhesive through a chemical reaction between the dry ingredients and water. The chemical reaction results in mineral hydrates that are not very water-soluble.
This allows setting in wet conditions or under water and further protects the hardened material from chemical attack. The chemical process for hydraulic cement was found by ancient Romans who used volcanic ash (pozzolana) with added lime (calcium oxide). Non-hydraulic cement does

Cement Cement mixed with fine aggregate produces mortar for masonry, or with sand and gravel, produces concrete. Cement is seldom used on its own, but rather to bind sand and gravel (aggregate) together. the four main mineral phases of the clinker, abbreviated in the cement chemist notation, being: C3S: alite ($3\text{CaO}\cdot\text{SiO}_2$); C2S: belite ($2\text{CaO}\cdot\text{SiO}_2$); C3A: A cement is a binder used for construction that sets, hardens, and adheres to other materials to bind them together. Concrete is the most widely used material in existence and is behind only water as the planet's most-consumed resource
