Pearson correlation coefficient In statistics, the Pearson correlation coefficient (PCC), also known as Pearson's r , the Pearson product-moment correlation coefficient (PPMCC), or simply r

Spearman's rank correlation coefficient Spearman correlation between two variables is equal to the Pearson correlation between the rank values of those two variables; while Pearson's correlation assesses

Rank correlation If, for example, one variable is the. methods of significance that use rank correlation are the Mann–Whitney U test and the Wilcoxon signed-rank test

Correlation coefficient The Pearson product-moment correlation coefficient, also known as r , R , or Pearson's r , is a measure of the strength and. measurement, ordinal, or categorical

Correlation quantities is the Pearson product-moment correlation coefficient, most commonly called Pearson's correlation coefficient; or simply the correlation coefficient;

Pearson's chi-squared test Pearson's chi-squared test or Pearson's χ^2 test is a statistical test applied to sets of categorical data to evaluate how likely

Point-biserial correlation coefficient There are three computations in wide use, all called the point-biserial correlation: (i) the Pearson correlation between item. corresponding total test scores

Kendall rank correlation coefficient It is a measure of rank correlation: the similarity. A τ test is a non-parametric hypothesis test for statistical dependence based on the τ coefficient. quantities
