Top Cat was created as a parody of The Phil Silvers Show (1955–59), a successful military comedy whose lead character (Sergeant Bilko, played by Silvers) was a fast-talking con artist. Hanna-Barbera sold the cartoon to ABC based on a drawing of Top Cat. Arnold Stang's vocal characterization of the main character was originally based on an impression of Phil Silvers's voice. During the original network run, the sponsor objected to the Silvers' impersonation—insisting that it was paying for Stang, not Silvers—so in later episodes Stang modified his characterization, bringing it closer to his own voice, though still copying Silvers. Additionally, Maurice Gosfield, who played Private Duane...

List of cat body-type mutations To protect the animal's welfare it is illegal in several countries or states to breed with parent cats that bear certain of these hypertype mutations. This is not always in the best interests of the cat, as many of these mutations are harmful; some are even lethal in their homozygous form. Cat breeders exploit the naturally occurring mutations by selectively breeding them in a small gene pool, resulting in the creation of new cat breeds with unusual physical characteristics. Cats heterozygous for this gene (Mkmk) have shortened and thickened legs, because this gene causes dwarfism in cats. Cats with Cats, like all living organisms, occasionally have mutations that affect their body type. However, in relatively small or isolated feral cat populations the mutations can also spread naturally without human intervention, for example on islands. Sometimes, these mutations are striking enough that humans select for and perpetuate them. The term designer cat is often used to refer to these cat breeds. dwarf cat gene (dominant) 45df493ae1
