According to the 2021 Canadian census, there are 215,885 Romanian-Canadians. The election resulted in a second but stronger minority government for Harper's Conservatives. While they were a dozen seats away from a majority government, the Liberal Party led by Stéphane Dion lost 18 seats as the New Democratic Party and the Bloc Québécois made slight gains. The Green Party failed to win any seats and lost its only Member of Parliament. Following the election, the Liberals and New Democrats attempted to form a coalition government and topple the Conservatives from power, but were unsuccessful in doing so. While money had been lost in penny production since at least the mid-1980s, the issue only grew to prominence in the late 2000s. Studies conducted by the Parliament of Canada, along with at least one survey, concluded that the penny was falling out of use due to inflation, which had eroded the coin's value. Production of the penny ended in May 2012 and the Royal Canadian Mint ceased distribution of them on February 4, 2013. e19b4c2fcd

Canadian silver dollar The voyageur design was used on the dollar until 1986. The coin's reverse design was sculpted by Emanuel Hahn and portrays a voyageur and a person of Indigenous descent paddling a birch-bark canoe. After 1967, the dollar coin was made of nickel, except for non-circulating commemorative issues for the collector market, which continue to contain silver. 1967 marked the end of the silver dollar as a business strike, or a coin issued for circulation. The official tartan for Canada as a whole is known as the "Maple Leaf tartan" and became an official national symbol in 2011. The maple leaf tartan was designed in 1964 by David Weiser to commemorate the new Canadian flag. The four colours reflect the colours of the maple leaf as it changes through the seasons—green in the spring, gold in the early autumn, red at the first frost, and brown after falling. The Maple Leaf tartan is used by the Royal Canadian Regiment Pipes and Drums, and has been worn by the second, third and fourth Battalions. e19b4c2fcd All Canadian passports are issued through the Passport Program of Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC).
