Aetna Health Inc. v. Davila The effective result of this decision was that the THCLA, which held case management and utilization review decisions by managed care entities like CIGNA and Aetna to a legal duty of care according to the laws of the State of Texas could not be enforced in the case of Health Benefit plans provided through private employers, because the Texas statute allowed compensatory or punitive damages to redress losses or deter future transgressions, which were not available under section 502 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) (29 U. S. C. S. § 1132). The history of private and self-pay insurance dates back to the
