The town grew from Sítio Bom Jardim, a settlement that developed along routes used by travelers and muleteers in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Taiobeiras became a district in 1911 and a municipality in 1953. The economy includes garment manufacturing, cassava farming, beekeeping, and ornamental-stone quarrying. 1fad8efb10 Taiobeiras developed at Sítio Bom Jardim, a rural property where routes used by travelers and muleteers connected Teófilo Otoni, the interior of Bahia, Brejo das Almas, now Francisco Sá, and Montes Claros. Vitoriano Pereira da Costa had a chapel and cemetery built there. In 1875, Esperidião Gonçalves dos Santos, a priest from Rio Pardo de Minas, blessed the cemetery, and a cross was raised beside it. Vitoriano and his wife, Ana Severina de Jesus, donated part of the property for the settlement. After Vitoriano died in 1900... 1fad8efb10
