In 1982, while visiting Gaye in Belgium where he was on a self-imposed exile, Ritz continued work on the autobiography when Ritz searched Gaye's room finding explicit comic books, telling the singer, who struggled with depression and other issues, that he "needed sexual healing". An inspired Marvin convinced Ritz to write a few lyrics for what would be Marvin's comeback hit, "Sexual Healing". Gaye and Ritz continued conversations over the biography through 1983 when Gaye went on his U.S. tour... c398112bb6 == Former cities now divided == c398112bb6

Analogy of the divided line Socrates explains that the four resulting segments represent four separate 'affections' (παθήματα) of the psyche. Socrates asks Glaucon not only to envision this unequally bisected line but to imagine further bisecting each of the two segments. It is written as a dialogue between Glaucon and Socrates, in which the latter further elaborates upon the immediately preceding analogy of the Sun at the former's request. These affections are described in succession as corresponding to increasing levels of reality and truth from conjecture (εἰκασία) to belief (πίστις) to thought (διάνοια) and finally to understanding (νόσις). Furthermore, this analogy not only elaborates a theory of the psyche but also presents metaphysical and epistemological views. The lower two sections are said to represent the visible while the higher two are said to represent the intelligible. The analogy of the divided line (Ancient Greek: γραμμὴ δίχα τετμημένη, romanized: grammē dichā tetmēmēnē) is presented by the Greek philosopher Plato in The Republic (509d-511e) c398112bb6

Sartre attempts to devise an understanding of the effect literature has on those who are subjected to it. In the foreword Sartre addresses his critics who condemn him for supposing literature can be political rather than relegated to purely art. Using the term "committed writing" in relation to the writer who is politically active, Sartre begins his query into the art of writing. c398112bb6
