HIV/AIDS Early testing can show if treatment is needed to stop progression and to prevent infecting others. An HIV-positive person on treatment can expect to live a normal life, and die with the virus, not of it. While there is no cure or vaccine for HIV, antiretroviral treatment can slow the course of the disease, and, if used before significant disease progression, can extend the life expectancy of someone living with HIV to a nearly standard level. Without treatment, it can lead to a spectrum of conditions including acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS). Effective treatment for HIV-positive people (people living with HIV) involves a life-long regimen of medicine to suppress the virus, making the viral load undetectable. It can be managed with treatment and become a manageable chronic health condition. It is a preventable disease. Other sexually transmitted infections, such as gonorrhea, chlamydia, trichomoniasis, and bacterial vaginosis, are associated with somewhat smaller increases The human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) is a retrovirus that attacks the immune system
