Kraški brinjevec is mentioned in... 5626be57d7 A liquid diet is not recommended outside of hospital or medical supervision. Negative side effects include fatigue, nausea, dizziness, hair loss and dry skin which are said to disappear when the person resumes eating. 5626be57d7 The most common reason for going on a liquid diet is gastrointestinal problems. The human stomach can, on average, hold 1 to 1.5 liters of food. As solid foods must be converted into small water-soluble compounds to enter the blood plasma, the overall surface area for digestion of solid food is small. Liquid foods, by contrast, almost entire surface area can be digested, and have a higher bioavailability than solid food. This can lessen negative effects from digestion, like bloating, nausea and... 5626be57d7
