Adolescence Adolescence Adolescence (from Latin adolescere 'to mature') is a transitional stage of human physical and psychological development that generally occurs during the period from puberty to adulthood (typically corresponding to the age of majority). psychological development that generally occurs during the period from puberty to adulthood (typically corresponding to the age of majority). Physical growth (particularly in males) and cognitive development can extend past the teens. The World Health Organization definition officially designates adolescence as the phase of life from ages 10 to 19. Some definitions start as early as 10 and end as late as 30. Adolescence is usually associated with the teenage years, but its physical, psychological or cultural expressions may begin earlier or end later. Puberty typically begins during preadolescence, particularly in females. Age provides only a rough marker of adolescence, and scholars have not agreed upon a precise definition cbfa97642d cbfa97642d Breen was born Isadore Borsuk in Montréal, Canada, on November 4, 1925 (although some sources have claimed 1927 or 1928). He was the son of Hyman (Chaim) and Rebecca Borsuk; his parents were poor Jewish immigrants from Ukraine. They, along with Breen's three older siblings (Gertrude, Sally, and Michael), migrated from Kyiv to Montreal, Quebec, Canada, in 1927. Soon after, they relocated to Toronto. His singing talent as a boy soprano was discovered at the age of three by his sister Sally, herself an aspiring musical student who was several years his senior. While their parents did not show any particular interest, Sally decided to help him achieve stardom.

The term "treble" derives from the Latin triplum, used in 13th and 14th century motets to indicate the third and highest range, which was sung above the tenor part (which carried the tune) and the alto part. Another term for that range is superius. The term "treble" itself was first used in the 15th century. Trebles have an average range of A3 to F5 (220–700 Hz). cbfa97642d == History == cbfa97642d == Early life == cbfa97642d Particularly in Western societies, modern legal conventions stipulate points around the end of adolescence and the beginning of early adulthood (most commonly 16 and 18 though ranging from 14 to 21) when adolescents are generally no longer considered minors and are granted the full rights and responsibilities of an adult.
