Baileys Irish Cream was created in London by advertising executive Tom Jago, working from a marketing brief issued by Gilbeys of Ireland, a division of International Distillers & Vintners. Gilbeys was searching for something to introduce to the international market. The process of finding a product began in 1971, and production research began in earnest after consultants David Gluckman, Hugh Seymour-Davies and Mac Macpherson came up with an alcoholic drink made of Irish whiskey and cream that, they remarked, "didn't taste punishing". David Gluckman also came up with the idea of naming it "Baileys", after "Bailey’s Bistro", a tiny restaurant beneath their office in Greek Street, Soho, London, next to the Pillars of Hercules pub.
