Its success led to several international versions... cc19937a94 The arithmetic logic unit (ALU) of the microPrism version had completed design in April 1988 and samples were fabricated, but the design of other components like the floating point unit (FPU) and memory management unit (MMU) were still not complete in the summer when DEC management decided to cancel the project in favor of MIPS-based systems. An operating system codenamed MICA was developed for the PRISM architecture, which was intended as a replacement for both VAX/VMS and ULTRIX on PRISM, although a standalone PRISM ULTRIX port was eventually created when the original multi-personality goal of MICA proved infeasible. cc19937a94 The Head of the Trent regatta, which originally was held on one day, has now grown to become a two day-long competition of timed trial races where rowers compete to be the quickest through the course, which runs an approximately 5 km length along the Trent-Severn Waterway. It is one of North America's largest head-race regattas. The Head of the Trent also coincides with Trent's homecoming festivities where university alumni return to the Symons Campus of Trent University in Peterborough, ON. The event also draws prospective students and other visitors to the Campus and to the city. This influx of visitors has a very positive impact on the local economy. cc19937a94 The company produced many different product lines over its history. It is best known for the work in the minicomputer market starting in the early 1960s. The company produced a series of machines known as the PDP line, with the PDP-8 and PDP-11 being among the most successful minis in history. Their success was only surpassed by another DEC product, the late-1970s VAX "supermini" systems that were designed to replace the PDP-11. Although a number of competitors had successfully competed with Digital through the 1970s, the VAX cemented the company's place as a leading vendor in the computer space. As microcomputers improved in the late 1980s, especially with the introduction of RISC-based workstation machines, the performance niche of the minicomputer was rapidly eroded. cc19937a94 Benedict Steiger was born in Brooklyn, New York, and first performed at the age of seven at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. However, it was soon settled and the actors' salaries were raised to $125,000 per episode.
