== History == Early history (1910-1950) Nevada's first constitutional convention met in 1863. The draft as a result of that meeting was rejected by voters on January 19, 1864 because of the draft's taxation policies, particularly regarding mining activities... Although the department has existed since 1917 as the Department of Highways, its current structure was only established in 1979. The department served as a section of the Department of Agriculture from 1893 to 1917, when it finally became a separate entity. True to its name, the Department of Highways... On March 21, 1864, Congress passed an enabling act signed by President Abraham Lincoln authorizing the Territory of Nevada to be admitted as a state pending a ratified constitution. The people of Nevada approved the current Constitution on September 14, 1864, which was delivered to Congress over the course of two days by telegraph (the most expensive ever, at the time) costing US$4,303.27 in 1864 (equivalent to $88,583 in 2025). Nevada became a state with the Nevada Constitution approved on October 31, 1864.

The Nevada Assembly met at the Nevada State Capitol in Carson City until 1971, when a separate Legislative Building was constructed south of the Capitol. The Legislative Building was expanded in 1997 to its current appearance to accommodate the growing Nevada Legislature. Since the 2012 session, Assembly districts have been formed by dividing the 21 Senate districts in half, so that each Assembly district is nested within a Senate district. Regular sessions of the Legislature are biennial (once every two years), begin on the first Monday in February in odd-numbered years, and may not exceed 120 days. Special sessions can be called by the governor and, since 2013, by the Legislature itself if two-thirds of lawmakers agree. Legislative work continues between sessions in standing committees and the Nevada Legislative Counsel Bureau. == History == U.S. Route 95 enters Nevada in Palm Gardens and heads north towards Railroad Pass, where it meets Interstate 11 and US 93. Nevada is officially known as the "Silver State" because of the importance of silver to its history and economy. It is also known as the "Battle Born State" because it achieved statehood during the Civil War; as the "Sagebrush State", for the native plant of the same name; and as the "Sage-hen State". Native Americans of the Paiute, Shoshone, and Washoe tribes inhabit what is now Nevada. The first Europeans to explore the region were Spanish. They called the region Nevada (snowy) because of the snow which covered the mountains in winter, similar to the Sierra Nevada in Spain. The area formed from mostly Alta... Mountain Time is officially observed close to the border to Utah in: The Assembly, like the Senate, is composed of citizen legislators, receiving a relatively small ($130) per diem fee for the first 60 days of a given session. This tends to self-selection, with legislative service difficult for those without flexible jobs and/or large outside incomes, such as doctors... As of 2025, members of the Democratic Party have a majority in both chambers since 2009. Mountain Time is also unofficially observed in the following Idaho border areas:
