I turn to Wikipedia so that it can come to my rescue let's say, can help me better understand the object of my curiosity. Now, with the understanding that the thing itself has no value as obvious, the image in the link depicts Arizona's fake electors casting their “votes” for Trump in 2020. If you look at the image, I even tried to enlarge it but could not understand much, to cast this fake vote these “electors” had to write down the candidate's name? It looked like this to me. Granted that this is a curiosity for its own sake, but still a curiosity, I would like to understand more if possible and I rely on the good heart You Users. Thank you very much. 762c43518e InterCity(IC) 762c43518e Horse Eye Jack and CaradhrasAiguo 762c43518e Indefinite, may be appealed at AN after six months 762c43518e Александр Мотин (talk D; contribs) is indefinitely banned from making any edits relating to Covid-19 as well as Russian politics, both topic areas to be broadly construed. 762c43518e Indefinite 762c43518e === Placed by the Wikipedia community === 762c43518e === User:Fredrick day === 762c43518e Indefinite 762c43518e 2019-08-12 762c43518e AN/I

Note that this will be annoying to follow, because you're prolific editors in the same general topic area. You can edit articles the other person has edited, but you can't modify something they've added (WP:IBAN says you can't "undo" each other's edits, but consensus at this WP:AN discussion earlier this month is that this includes modifying each other's edits, which includes by it's very nature "undoing" a portion of the edit). If the other person's edit needs to be changed, someone else will notice and change it. Fixing things you think are wrong with the other's edits is now Someone Else's Problem. 762c43518e Indefinite 762c43518e Александр Мотин 762c43518e
