A person suffering from an identity disturbance may adopt the personality traits of those around them, as they struggle with their own identity. They may confuse their own characteristics, emotions, and desires with those of another person. In the 1930s, psychoanalyst Helene Deutsch described the "as if" personality, in which an individual's identity appears superficially intact but lacks authenticity and depth. Such a person imitates the emotions and identities of others to conceal an inner emptiness, living as if they had genuine feelings and desires. 446a102ff9 Two Buffalo police officers were charged with felony assault in connection with the incident; they pleaded not guilty. Governor Andrew Cuomo and Senator Chuck Schumer condemned police conduct in the incident. President Donald Trump spread false and unfounded conspiracy theories about Gugino in his response to the incident on Twitter. On February 11, 2021, Erie County district attorney John Flynn announced that a grand jury had dismissed the charges against the officers. 446a102ff9 == Early life == 446a102ff9

This kind of dichotomous interpretation is contrasted by an acknowledgement of certain nuances known as "shades of gray". Splitting can include different contexts, as individuals who use this defense mechanism may "split" representations of their own mind, of their own personality, and of others. Splitting is observed in personality disorders belonging to cluster B, such as borderline personality disorder and narcissistic personality disorder, as well as schizophrenia and depression. In dissociative identity disorder, the term splitting is used to refer to a split in personality alter-egos. 446a102ff9
