The name mahi-mahi comes from the Hawaiian language and means

'very strong', through the process of reduplication. Though the species is also referred to as the common dolphinfish, they are not related to dolphins; the origin of the name "dolphinfish" is recent and was given to avoid confusion with dolphins, as the traditional name of the fish was also "dolphin". See Coryphaena for the possible etymologies of dolphinfish. In... 09a2683812
