Dignity in Dying campaigns for the greater choice, control and access to a full range of medical and palliative services at the end-of-life, including providing terminally ill adults with the option of a painless, assisted death, within strict legal safeguards. It declares that its campaign looks to bring about a generally more compassionate approach to the end-of-life.

Suicide bag It is usually used in conjunction with a flow of an inert gas that is lighter or less dense than air, like helium or nitrogen. While asphyxiation by helium can be detected at autopsy, there is currently no test that can detect asphyxiation by nitrogen. This method also makes the direct cause of death difficult to trace if the bag and gas canister are removed before the death is investigated. In 2009, Philip A suicide bag, also known as an exit bag or hood, is part of a euthanasia device consisting of a large plastic bag with a drawcord used to die by suicide through inert gas asphyxiation. Continuing to breathe expels carbon dioxide and this prevents the panic, sense of suffocation and struggling before unconsciousness, known as the hypercapnic alarm response caused by the presence of high carbon dioxide concentrations in the blood. For this reason, nitrogen is commonly the preferred choice for people who do not want the cause of death established. Subsequent to this, the method "has been winning supporters both in the USA and in Europe as a reliable, rapid and painless way to die"

After having a panel screen the film, the Army and Air Force Motion Picture Service initially banned M*A*S*H from being shown at Army and Air Force base theaters because it "reflected unfavorably" on the armed services.
